

GROUP COMMUNICATION

- GROUP COMMUNICATION
- Communication by many persons in a face to face situation is described as group communication. Here, as the group grows in size communication tends to become more and more of monologue reducing participation. In group communication, feedback is more difficult to measure and respond to. Thus, group communication is more complex process than interpersonal communication.