Plot

Kutti Sran (translated as junior boat captain in Malayalam) is a film about a mariner who operates a cargo vessel near the sea port of Kodungalloor, once a roaring port town in Kerala. One day, the local police station discovers an unidentified body that has washed ashore. A Buddhist nun, Revamma, comes forward to claim that she can identify the rotten body, and she recognises it as that of one Kutti Sran. Police enquire her relationship with Kutti Sran. Meanwhile, another Latin Christian woman, Pemenna, too claims to recognize the dead man. Both women assure the investigators that the body is that of Kutti Sran. Finally a mute woman, Kali, joins them and seeks permission to see the corpse. She, however, rejects the claim made by the other women and argues that the body is not that of Kutti Sran. Pemenna identifies Kali and tells Revamma that Kali is Kutti Sran's wife. Eventually each woman shares her different acquaintance and relation with Kutti Sran.
