MAINTAINING YOUR Sexual & Reproductive Health During COVID-19

Don't Delay Family Planning Services During COVID-19
 Health centers are open and all services are available. Waiting to take care of your sexual and reproductive health during the COVID-19 pandemic may negatively impact your health and put you and your partner at greater risk.

Practice Safer Sex
 Whether we're in a pandemic or not, you should still practice safer sex. If you have a partner and you don't live in the same house, you can sext or go on a virtual date using video chat. If you live with your partner, follow the recommendations for isolation or quarantine if one of you is exposed to or infected with COVID-19. And remember, you are your safest sex partner – masturbation is always an option.

Prepare for the Rise in COVID-19 Cases
 Keep birth control pills on hand and have a backup source of birth control, like condoms. If you have a long-term form of birth control, such as an IUD that is about to expire, contact your healthcare provider to find out if they can replace or remove it for you.

As a part of the 75th year of Independence the staff and students of Department of Economics collected essential items through a Campaign and handed it over to Jyotirgamaya Swasraya Kendram, Perumbilave a Rehabilitation Centre for Visually Challenged to serve its inmates on 12/08/2021. This has brought in some good Samaritans to provide much needed help to the needy as part of their social responsibility. With all kinds of business activities coming to a standstill due to Covid 19 outbreak extending a helping hand was crucial and beneficial to the inmates.

Handing over of Essential Items to Jyotirgamaya Swasraya Kendram, Perumbilave a Rehabilitation Centre for Visually Challenged to serve its inmates on 12/08/2021

The background of the entire poster is a dark brown color with a pattern of stylized, golden-yellow hands. These hands are reaching upwards and outwards, appearing to hold up a complex, interconnected structure of lines and shapes, symbolizing support and community.
