LA LUEUR -13 (21-2-23)

Poetry Expression

Department of English

The Department of English conducted a Poetry expression /exploration programme LA LUEUR on February 21 in honour of our retiring colleague Dr Esther Mani. The emphasis of the programme was on the process of exploration and personal expression rather than a competitive setting or formal workshop. It allowed students to delve into the given topic on womanhood and creatively express their thoughts and emotions through poetry without the pressure of competition or the structure of a traditional workshop. This type of program encourages students to explore their inner thoughts and feelings and develop their poetic skills in a nurturing and non-judgmental environment. a large number of students participated and the contributions were compiled into a poetry compilation. proposed to be released on 8th March 2023.

It is a Government aided college for Women located in the rural area of Guruvayoor. The institution is committed to hold the vision of creating a socially and spiritually empowered woman through Academic excellence that goes hand in hand with strong ethical values, propelled by pioneering ideas, encased with good eco-sensibility, abetting comprehensive augmentation.

CONCEPT NOTE

Discourses, scholarship and critique on women and gender issues have been in the mainstream for quite some time now. It can be presumed that at this point some questions should be raised pertaining the efficacy and extent of change brought about by these. For instance:

- Has women empowerment really empowered?
- Has women empowerment encumbered?
- Has women empowerment backfired?
- Has women empowerment initiated a reverse engineering in the gender equality scale?
- Has women empowerment ignored the other genders?
- Is women empowerment being problematized by the Post Human?

These and a legion of other questions surround the ideological corpus of the contemporary world. This seminar does not intend to propose a solution or conclusion for these myriad questions. But we offer a platform for enlightening discussions. Participants from all disciplines – science, humanities, commerce or any other are invited to submit and present papers.
