CONCEPT NOTE

Discourses, scholarship and critique on women and gender issues have been in the mainstream for quite some time now. It can be presumed that at this point some questions should be raised pertaining the efficacy and extent of change brought about by these. For instance:

- Has women empowerment really empowered?
- Has women empowerment encumbered?
- Has women empowerment backfired?
- Has women empowerment initiated a reverse engineering in the gender equality scale?
- Has women empowerment ignored the other genders?
- Is women empowerment being problematized by the Post Human?

These and a legion of other questions surround the ideological corpus of the contemporary world. This seminar does not intend to propose a solution or conclusion for these myriad questions. But we offer a platform for enlightening discussions. Participants from all disciplines – science, humanities, commerce or any other are invited to submit and present papers.
